IVERNIA, OF THE SAME LINE, SAILED TO-DAY.

Passengers Were Rather Nervous, but No Untoward Inci-Taken Aboard Allayed Fears.

QUEENSTOWN, May 15 .- On the arrival of the Umbria to-day she was boarded by detectives from Scotland Yard, searching for the man who sent the bomb to the Cunard pier in New York last Saturday.

The man suspected to be the dynamiter proved to the satisfaction of the detectives that he was an honest citizen, and the fact that he took the boat the cabled description of the dynamiter.

secret was well kept across the ocean. Detectives were sent among the steerage passengers, but no person corresponding in appearance to the man described by cable as the dynamizer was found.

Detectives are watching at Queenstown for the arrival of the Umbria to-day. There is a suspicion that Rossio, in order to throw his pursuers off the trail, may have taken passage on the very ship he intended to blow up. At least there is on board the Umbria one man who will detectives have gone over the passenger list carefully and they picked out inis man. There may be others. The London and Dublin police authorities were notified and detectives are at the Cunard line in Queenstown to-day awaiting the arrival of the Umbria.

Believe He Is Rossow.

Lieut. Rohan, in charge of the Chicago Detective Bureau, and Detective Muchowsky. the Chicago Anarchist expert, say there is no doubt that G. Rossio, who made and sent the infernal machine to the Cunard line pier, is Jean Rossow, who is believed to have made the dynamite bomb used in the Haymarket riot. The New York police control in this belief.

This belief. The police confirm in this belief. The known that Rossow disappeared from Chicago three years ago, and betective Muchowsky has discovered in the last few days that he was seen again on the streets not a month ago. Through secret channels they have found that he met several of his old companions, but the police say that they believe he was alone in his plan to destroy the Umbria. They infer this from the fact that in the room on Washington Boulevard, where he made the machine, he had no company and at no time any companion.

The mystery surrounding the death of Herbert Embleton, of No. 447 Central avenue, in the Loop Hotel, Vest Fulton street, Williamsburg, last night, was cleared up to-day, when Mrs. Rose Richardson, of Hammell's Station, Rockaway Beach, acknowledged that she was the woman who was with him and disappeared after he was found poisoned. She asserts that he committed suicide by taking carbolic acid after attempting to kill her and himself by turning on the gas in the room they occupied.

The Richardson woman called at the hotel this afternoon for her pocketbook, which she left in her flight. Capt. Harkins and Detective Shepard took her to the Miller Avenue Station, where she was detained as a witness. She made he following statement:

"I met this man for the first time on Thursday afternoon. We went to the Loop Hotel that night, and when he left to go to work on Friday morning he made an engagement to meet me again in the afternoon.

"I met him and we took the same room we had the night before, registering as T. H. Johnson and wife, Baltinore. Early in the evening he astonished me by making the proposition that we commit suicide together. I laughed closed the windows and turned on the

"At first I thought it was a joke, but screamed. Then he turned off the gas and opened the windows. He said he was only joking and went out, saying that he was going to see his folks and would be back in an hour.

"I was a little sick from the gas and remained in the room by an open win-dow until he returned. Just after he opened the door and entered the room he took a bottle of carbolic acid from his ocket. "Before I knew what he was going to do he swallowed the acid. I could smell clude Such Stunts as Vaulting it, and when he fell to the floor groaning, I got out as fast as I could. I went directly home and found that I had left my pocketbook behind. When I came back for it to-day I was arrested." The police are inclined to believe her story. There was no reason why she should return to the hotel unless she could prove her innocence. She wanted to see the body, but permission was denied her. Embleton was a painter's helper, employed by the Brooklyn Rapid-Fransit Company. In the pocket of the man's clothes was found a letter addressed to Burt
